Solutions to the Dropout Crisis

Tuesday, January 11, 2011

3:30 – 4:30 p.m. Eastern Time

Project-Based Learning: A Working Model for Student Engagement

presented by

Angela Wall and Bernard Green

- * Find out what Project-Based Learning is and how to implement it.
- * Discover how it improves student engagement.
- * Learn from a student participant how he has benefited from Project-Based Learning.

In this first Solutions broadcast of the New Year, Angela Wall, an instructor at Wayne Community College, and one of her students, Bernard Green, will explain to listeners what Project-Based Learning (PBL) is, why students benefit from it, how teachers can use it, and how to avoid pitfalls. The presenters will provide enough resources for teachers so they can conduct their own project. A very hands-on start for 2011!

On the day of the webcast, log on 10 to 30 minutes early to ensure you are connected to the broadcast at www.dropoutprevention.org/webcast.
