Gain hands-on experience conducting assessments, designing curriculum, evaluating improvements, and utilizing technology to improve learning for your special needs students.

Teaching and Learning

Make a difference in the lives of your students as you develop your own philosophy and style of teaching and leading. With the support of faculty and peers, you will seek solutions to providing quality education in a multicultural, global age, with a choice of six specializations to complete your Masters degree. Our teaching and learning specializations are also relevant to professionals interested in leading the learning efforts in professional, non-profit and community-based organizations.

“PLNU professors not only know their discipline and are personally invested in their students, but they are skilled teachers themselves.”
